

SNF HOLDING COMPANY

Dear Valued Customer:

SNF would like to thank you for your continued support. As you know, we always work to maintain your trust and business by providing excellent quality products at competitive prices.

In fall 2009 and early 2010, oil prices have risen above $70 per barrel with the result that propylene has increased significantly and is nominated to go higher in February. This move has resulted in higher feed stocks and increased raw material prices. To offset this increased cost, SNF is implementing a price increase on all polymers effective our shipping date of March 1, 2010. Please consult with your local sales representative for specific price inquiries or if you have any questions.

We will continue to review costs on an ongoing basis and we will amend our prices accordingly. Finally, we want to assure you that our focus remains on reducing our operating costs and increasing productivity.

Again, we thank you for your business and look forward to working with you in 2010.
